Formation of Anglo-French War Council is Probable.

Premier Asquith, in the House of Commons yesterday, foreshadowed the establishment of an Anglo-French War Council, in which French and British ministers would sit. He expressed the hope that both Russia and Italy would send ministers to join in the council in the near future.

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country."

The Ladies of the W.A. of the Oyen English Church are holding a Sale of Work, on Thursday, November 25th, at Exceal Hall. After the sale of work a supper and dance will be given. Admission to supper and dance $1.00 a couple. Gifts of cakes pies or sandwiches will be very acceptable.

Rev. Geo. A. Steele left for Edmonton on Tuesday morning to attend a meeting of the Annual Conference Special Committee.

Mrs. Wm. McCormack of Omahut, and her son Robert McCormack of Clemens, were the guests of Dr. H. C. Swartzlander during the early part of this week.

Messrs. B. H. Dial and Jas. Lees returned to town on Sunday morning from Calgary.

The Wavy Plain Branch of the Women's Institute held a very enjoyable meeting on Saturday, October 30th, in the Schoolhouse. After the business was gone through, a paper was read on "Short Cuts in Sewing and Mending." An amusing recitation and some instrumental music was given, also a discussion on "Christmas Giving." Four members passed samples of candy around and gave the recipes for same. A song from the President closed the meeting.

Mr. Roy Clemens of Clemens is building a residence on Second Ave., east. He expects to have same ready for occupation at the end of the week when his family will move into town.

The Ladies Aid of the Oyen Methodist Church will hold a special meeting at the close of service on Sunday evening, November 14th, at which they desire to meet the members of the Trustee Board to discuss some important business.

From the "Christian Guardian" of October 26th, we learn that the Rev. F. E. H. Clayton, who was stationed in 1912 on what is now known as the Oyen Circuit of the Methodist Church, volunteered for active service in the British Navy and has already seen action on H. M. S. Tiger.

Rev. Jas. Young, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Bobt. Smith, returned to his home at Seal on Tuesday last.
Messrs. Neil Smith & Co., have sold their business at Cereal, to R. Thompson of Guernsey, Sask., who will take possession some time in December.

Read the special building of sets on page four.

War News in Brief.

An acute revival of the submarine issue, chiefly in the Mediterranean.

General offensive activity of the Russians on the Eastern front, makes the war news today read like a repetition of history about six months ago.

Along the southern extremity of the Russian line to the west of Caartorysk, where desperate battles have been going on for several weeks, the Russians claim to have made good progress, resulting, it is said, in breaking the Austro-German lines and culminating in a retreat during which numbers of fleeing forces were drowned and over two thousand Austro-German prisoners taken.

An un-official report states that both wings of the Bulgars in forces invading Macedonia are threatened by Anglo-French advances, while the Serbians are said to have resumed the offensive in the region of the Balkan Pass where they recently won an important success.

First Snow Fall

The first snow of the season fell in this district on Tuesday afternoon. Extremely cold weather prevailed on Monday and a snow storm seemed to be brewing all day, but it was not till about three o'clock in the following afternoon, that the snow commenced to fall.

The ground was covered to a depth of one inch before the snow fell stopped. Cold weather has been prevalent since.

Mr. Joe Koenig's Magdalen hat has temporarily rented the residence of Mr. J. Nelson the Jr., on First Ave. East.

Barnyard Champions

Two reports come this week wedged between accounts of war's devastations, that ought to claim the attention of every farmer, amateur or otherwise, in the country. The first from Philadelphia, concerns the record of Lady Eglantine, the second, from Quelp, Ontario, recites the achievements of Maiden Fern. Lady Eglantine, for all her title, is but a White Leghorn hen, while Maiden Fern, who might be an Indian princess, is a Jersey cow. Bird and beast are champions. Undisturbed by war's alarms, they have gone earnestly and quietly about their own business, thereby pointing a moral to many superior animals and showing what a good hen and a good cow can do.

Lady Eglantine for a year has been competing with other hens in the matter of egg laying. It is the trade, business or profession to which she was reared, and in the contest she emerges victor. In 265 days—days hot and cold, wet and dry, sunny and cloudy, she has produced 214 eggs. The former world's record, it is stated, was 280 eggs in a year. Eglantine has turned 28 days more to advantage and topped her rival's record with two dozen and four to spare. Four hens in this competition with Lady Eglantine, and the pen of five produced a total of 1,211 eggs during the year. Deducting Lady Eglantine's contribution, it is seen that the other four, with an average of 224 for the 355 days, are also entitled to a fair share of commendation, although their record is partially eclipsed by the activity of the countess.

The average barnyard hen—she that eats the farmer's feed, and eats no less, but rather more, than Lady Eglantine and her sisters—produces only 70 eggs per year. That is, the best of the average barnyard hens lays that number of eggs. Taking the total production of the competing hens as a basis, the farmers laywers are approximately seventy per cent. inefficient. The farmer's cow (c.o., is inefficient. Maiden Fern in twelve months put $977 into the pockets of her owner. "Milk alone," says the report, "sold for $229 in 230 days, and two calves sold for $450. Prizes won by one calf contributed the remainder of the total earnings."

These figures ought to arouse the interest of every farmer. The records speak for themselves. They point their own moral. Good stock, whether in chickens or in cows, is worth all it costs to establish. Why keep hens that lay only seventy eggs a year, or cows that produce less than $100 a year when there are Lady Eglantines and Maiden Ferns to show what hen and cows can do? It also shows that industry is its own reward, and even if that reward only takes the form of newspaper publicity.

—Saskatoon Star.

Ocean Freight Rates

The cost of transatlantic carriage tends decidedly upward. In October the rate on grain from our Atlantic ports to Liverpool was eighteen pence a bushel, against only four pence for the corresponding period last year—when war had been going on three months—and a normal rate in time of peace of two and a half or three pence. This, then, was more than six times the ordinary rate; and the Journal of Commerce adds: "If is the belief among owners that the present record rate of eighteen pence will be greatly exceeded."

The reasons are obvious. Eastbound shipments across the Atlantic are by far the heaviest ever known. At the same time a large part of the world's shipping is unavailable for mercantile uses. The big German merchant fleet is tied up. England, France and Italy are using many merchant ships for military purposes. The English and the French Governments are now great importers, regularly taking about half the available tonnage. Private shippers must shift the best they can. Demurrage is an important factor, for a vessel may be held up indefinitely on the other side. If the shipping guarantees this charge it may cost him all the way from five hundred to two thousand dollars a day. If he does not guarantee it, it is absorbed in the freight rate.

Under present conditions, no doubt, these freight charges fall mainly on the European buyers rather than on the American seller; yet they are clearly a handicap on trade. In other circumstances the remedy for excessive rates would be to build more ships; but an immense quantity of shipping is held off the market by the war. The moment war ends it will be competing for cargoes—just at a time when there will be fewer cargoes to be had. With that prospect in view, a large addition to the world's merchant fleet does not look attractive. High freight rates are being used as an argument for Government ships; but, in fact, they are one of the incidental afflictions of war.—S. E. P.

Superlatives In Advertising

We wonder why a sort of lying that is amusing when applied to the circus becomes offensive when applied to fiction and plays. You expect the circus to advertise itself in superlatives and would be disappointed if it did not. Its "greatest, grandest, costliest" seems to go along with the tinsel and blare.

When a manager or a publisher applies like exaggeration to his play or his book, you think he must be an unimaginative blockhead; otherwise he would lie more artfully. Experienced persons have learned to shun books and plays that talk about themselves in superlatives—on a reasonable suspicion that they are mostly swindlers and colored glass.

Mr. W. J. Ada was elected by acclamation to fill the vacancy on the council of the H. M. of Cereal. The meeting was held in the Springburn Schoolhouse

Ode to a Car.

(Not necessarily a Lyrical)

My auto, 'tis of thee,
Shout out to poverty,
Of thee, I chant,
I blew a pile of dough
On you two years ago
Now you refuse to go
Or won't—or can't.
Through town and countryside
You were my joy and pride
A happy day.
I loved thy gaudy hue,
The nice white tires so new
Now down and out for true
In every way,
To thee, old rattle box,
Come many lumps and knocks:
For thee I grieve,
Badly thy top is worn,
Frayed are the seats and torn,
And whooping cough affects thy horn,
I do believe.
Thy perfume swells the breeze,
And good folks choke and wheeze,
As we pass by.
I paid for thee a price,
I would buy a mansion twice,
Now all are selling "ice"—
I wonder why?
Thy motor has the grippe,
Thy spark plug has the pip,
And woe is thine.
I, too, have suffered chills,
Ague and kindred ills,
Trying to pay my bills,
Since thou wert mine.
Gone is my bank roll now,
No more 'twould choke a cow,
As once before.
Yet if I had the man,
Swelp me Bob, amen,
I'd buy a car again,
And speed some more.

MacKlaine! MacKlaine! MacKlaine!!!

A certain editor recently received from a lady some verses, daintily tied up with pink ribbon and entitled, "I Wonder If He'll Miss Me?"

After reading them he returned the effort to the sender with the following note:

"Dear Madam—If he does he ought never to be trusted with firearms again."

"Yes, she rejected me, but she did it in a most encouraging way."

"How was that?"
"As I went away she pointed to the foot-prints I had made the carpet, and said, 'The next time you come to propose to me, I want you to wipe your shoes clean!'"

Local Items

Mr. J. Naismith, Sr., has rented the office recently occupied by the R. M. of Cereal.

Mr. Eric Lindquist returned from Calgary yesterday with a car load of horses.

It looks as if Mr. R. V. Winders, representative of the Dominion government, will be in town for many weeks to come. Mr. Winders came to Oyen to look after the Government Seed Grain collections about the time grain first started to move to the elevators. Grain is moving East very slowly, the elevators remain full, and threshing is not nearly half done in this district yet. Number of farmers who have their crops threshed are unable to dispose of it, and till they do it will be impossible for them to meet their obligations. From the present look of things, Mr. Winders will still be with us when the poplars put in their appearance next spring.
